ST. PROCOPIUS COLLEGE - LISLE ILLINOIS

TO FATHER WILLIAM, OSB

The name that is synonymous with science here at S.P.C. is that of the Reverend William Slonka, Ph.D. Father William in 1925 became one of the first graduates of the new science department of Saint Croix College. Now head of the physics department, Father somehow finds the time to serve on no less than four faculty committees in addition to teaching courses in mathematics, physics, and pre-engineering, plus fulfilling his daily priestly duties. To pursue his passion, the growth of the science department.

Father often snatches time out of his packed schedule to visit leading high schools and give impromptu campus tours for visiting students.

With sluggishness he has no patience; to personal sacrifice he has already devoted a lifetime. Typically, his idea of relaxation is a no-holds-barred stick-and-puck clash on the slough.

Many a befuddled student knocks on the door of his Science Building office in the course of a week-day in need of counsel. He is never refused. Nor will he ever be as long as those strong legs carry Father William about his business and that vigorous mind follow its great ideals, already served so tirelessly for so long. To the Reverend William Shonka, O.S.B., Ph.D., then, we respectfully and lovingly dedicate this yearbook.

This is the Prologue

Inasmuch as it is the nature of an annual to record the events of the year photographically and to caption these items in such a manner that they will capture the flavor and retain it throughout the existence of the book, the staff must concentrate on three areas: coverage, photography, and copy. We strive for the ideal—complete coverage of the year, photographic expression of the highest quality, and effective copy. An intrinsic part of the success of the book also is the artistic design and balance, the layout, and the attention to detail. If we keep this ideal representation of ours in mind, we have that extra incentive to produce to our full capacity.

It remains to be said that we work in a framework of tradition. Within this wide tradition we must continually set higher standards by searching for every way to improve the SPC; it is a challenge to our pride in St. Procopius College. For we acquire, somehow, in some unknown way, a deep-seated expansive pride in the many accomplishments and brisk progress that is Procopius, and as a result have a personal aim to set a new challenge for the next SPC to meet and overcome. This is our way of telling you how proud we are of that small, significant college out in Lisle.

Ron Bobka, Mike Branson, and Jay Pouzar discover that advanced mathematics is an integral part of physics under the direction of Father William.

The excellent quality of the faculty of St. Procopius College is measured in two ways—by the standards they demand and the personal note they inject in relationships with the students. The ever-rising scholastic standards established by the professors is indicative of their interest in our academic well-being. Their untiring efforts in this regard are deeply appreciated by the students. And they maintain a personal tie with each one of us, guiding, counseling, directing our college life to its highest possible fulfillment.

After four years of study, the men on the following pages are leaving St. Procopius College to pursue their ambitions in life. But they can never really leave St. Procopius behind. For a moment they may look at the frustrations, fears, problems, and occasional heartbreaks of a college life, and think how good it is to leave. In the next moment these all seem petty things compared to the maturity and character developed here. Trite? Perhaps. But still true.

Left sizeably smaller in numbers after the exit of many engineering majors and other two-year-only Procopians, the Junior Class has taken pains to fill the gap in its ranks by individual progress. This step it has taken resolutely and unhesitatingly, and will undoubtedly reap the fruits of unqualified school leadership in their Senior year.

Beginning to specialize, plunged deep into the task of turning itself into educated Catholic manhood, is the Sophomore Class. With a strong athletic bent and willing cooperative spirit, the second-year-man of Saint Procopius College finds himself in the busiest semesters of his college life. Now past is the gay carry-over of high school; soon to come the responsibility of graduation.

Youngest, newest members of the Benedictine family of St. Procopius College, the frosh have already begun to display the talents of their elder brothers for contributing to the success of organizing, spirit, sports, and intellectual excellence. Among the largest of classes ever to enter the College, the present Freshman aggregate is also a giant scholastically, as the Freshman testing program found.

Undoubtedly they will begin to prove themselves in leadership when another group of initiate-Procopians invades the campus.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming weekend, October 14, was a most successful social event from every standpoint. The bonfire and pep rally on the eve always draws a crowd. The next day's football game with Northwestern College of Wisconsin was something to cheer about as the Cards conquered by 14-0, winning their first Homecoming since Eisenhower first reached office. The smorgasbord dinner capped off the afternoon, and the dance was exceptionally well attended; decorations, music, and the victory were quite a combination.

a light for the darkness

"It's a story of the emotions of the people involved in the situations of the Bible," says Father Mathias and Alban, librettist and composer of "A Light For The Darkness." This new art form, the balletorio, is a harmonization of ballet and the oratorio. The balletorio begins with the creation of the world and in song and dance relates the story of Adam and Eve, the birth of Christ, His crucifixion and resurrection.

Bruce Foote, who had been the star of WGN's "Theatre of the Air," was guest soloist for the show. In addition, the Loretto Rozak dancers, guest artists Patricia Klecovic, the current prima ballerina with Chicago's Lyric Opera, Joe Komminsky, Robert Boehm, and James Morski, leading dancers with the Lyric, also appeared. Supporting the principals were a 60 piece symphony orchestra and a 120 voice mixed college and community chorus.

A cast of almost a hundred, Dr. Toenniges's sparkling fifty-piece orchestra, and Fr. Mathias's "most talented group of leading performers we have put together" combined on six dates in April to present the thirty first and possibly most spectacular SPC Production to date, Rogers and Hammerstein's Carousel. The SPCP spotlights followed the roguish Jigger Craigin (Don Jacklich), spritely Miss Pipperidge (Marjorie Hrunek), the wise and golden-throated Nettie Fowler (Judy Swallow), and upright Enoch Snow (Andy Petach). A most graceful Louise (Jerrie Malinaski), the unhappy Billy Bigelow (Dom Castino), and his faithful wife, Julie (Donna Yackley), formed with much warmth the central family of the musicale.

Fr. Alban, conducting the orchestra for the ailing Dr. Toenniges, blended the leading roles, the smooth choral work, and the lively dancing into truly delightful musical fare.

Above: Barker Bigelow conquers another heart, but loses his own to Miss Julie in the bargain.

Above, right: "Put on a new coat of paint: you're startin' to peel, you old pleasure boat!"

Below: "When the Children Are Asleep." Carrie and Mr. Snow dream about their plans for a quiet life in a seaside cottage with eight children and twelve ships of herring.

An Enoch and Carrie Snow Production.

"You'll Never Walk Alone." Nettie consoles Mrs. Bigelow on the loss of her Billy.

Nettie Fowler recognizes the glint in the sailors' eyes and declares that "June is Bustin' Out All Over."

RETREAT

For the year's annual spiritual retreat we were fortunate enough to have the Rt. Reverend Msgr. Joseph Crowley, Editor of Our Sunday Visitor, as retreat master. Msgr. Crowley imparted a spirit of manful recollection to the two and a half days of retreat, even though hampered by fever of the move to Kohlbeck Hall.

The Lettermen's Club is one of the biggest and busiest organizations on the SPC campus. It is composed of athletes who have received letters in any of the four major sports — football, basketball, baseball, and track. This year the club financed uniforms for the cheerleaders, ushered at varsity contests, published programs for home games, sponsored the weekly bulletin "The Card" and the "Athlete of the Week," originated a movement to change the school nickname, obtained publicity from local papers on varsity encounters, and held the annual Lettermen's Dance in November.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The 1960-61 school year marks the beginning of a new era in Student Government at Procopius. Efficiency, vitality, and service are the hallmarks of the new Council as led by President Anthony Castino. His total reorganization of the Council should lead to the worthwhile fruits of progressively closer faculty-student relations in the years to come.

Here are some rare poses of the thirteen members of the staff of the 1961 SPC, rare because the staff members appear static. One year ago the Editor and his team embarked on the task of bringing you a fresh, colorful, first-class year-book. The work has been tedious; the results, we sincerely feel, are gratifying.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club proves that science is more than a dry, sterile thing at SPC. Through its varied membership and activities which include trips to Argonne National Laboratories, movies, and lectures, the club embraces physical science as a dynamic, lively, integral part of college life.

Bob Mazich, Donna Pongetti (Rosary College), and CIB Director Gerry Hanley work on their speeches before the program begins.

COLLEGE INFORMATION BUREAU

Mary Hoffman (Mundelein), Rich Loritz, and Sandy Novak (St. Francis) also wait for the program to begin. Below, Gerry Hanley fraternizes with the high school audience after the formal speeches.

Now in its second year of operation, the College Information Bureau continues to present programs of talks and discussions to teen clubs and other youth groups, in line with its purpose to promote and encourage Catholic higher education by presenting a realistic view of college life. CIB was organized at St. Procopius by several students, and remains under the direction of the Big Brothers' Organization.

"The trouble with Ron is that he takes his gaiety too seriously."

Most lavish and successful dance of the 1960-61 schoolyear was "While We're Young," the product of the imagination and energy of Mr. Don Jacklich. Jake personally signed up the first nationally known band ever to play for S.P.C. function, Bobby Christian's. The Christian sound coupled with the surroundings of the Palos Country Club created an air that will not soon be forgotten.

HLETICS

ATHLETICS...

We here at St. Procopius College are fortunate to have such a well-rounded program of athletics. As the only Catholic college in Illinois to play varsity football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, and the organized intramural play, we must attribute our success to the efforts of our athletic director, Fr. Stanley, and to Coach Pasquini and Coach Knight. The results of their work are shown on pages 92-119.

The crowd, an integral part of any sports success, roars approval at Homecoming.

No one can remember the sports year without recalling Miram Orlowski, Aggie Gryzlo, April Fandell, Tom Lobonc, and Jay Pouzar, the energetic and dedicated cheerleaders.

FOOTBALL

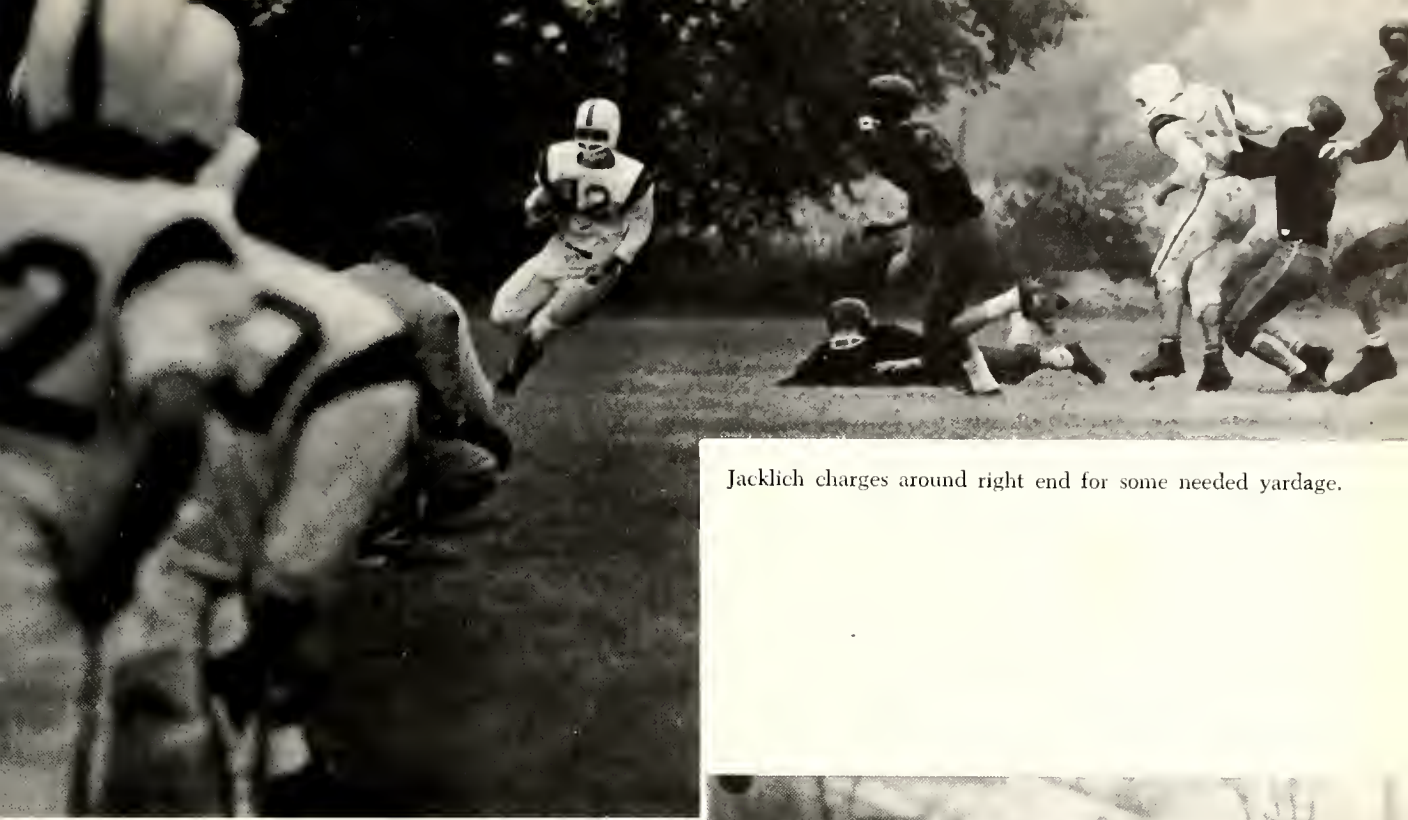

The season can be summed up in few words, we won a couple, tied some, barely lost several, and lost others. But this doesn't express the true nature of the season. You had to see the Homecoming win and the last-second loss to Milton, feel the frustration of the Eureka tie to know what a season it was, that it heralded a great next season.

Jacklich charges around right end for some needed yardage.

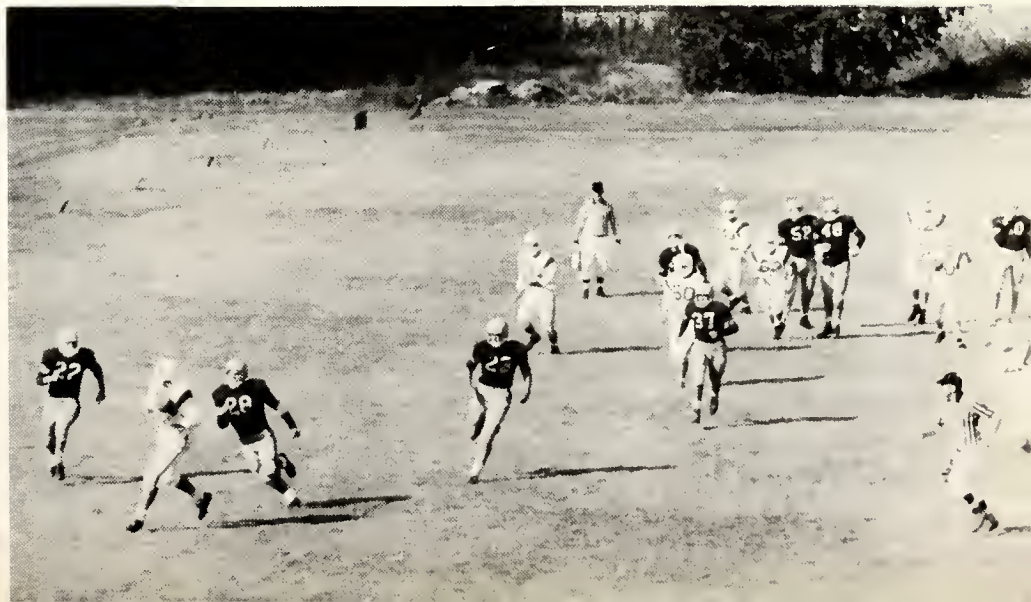

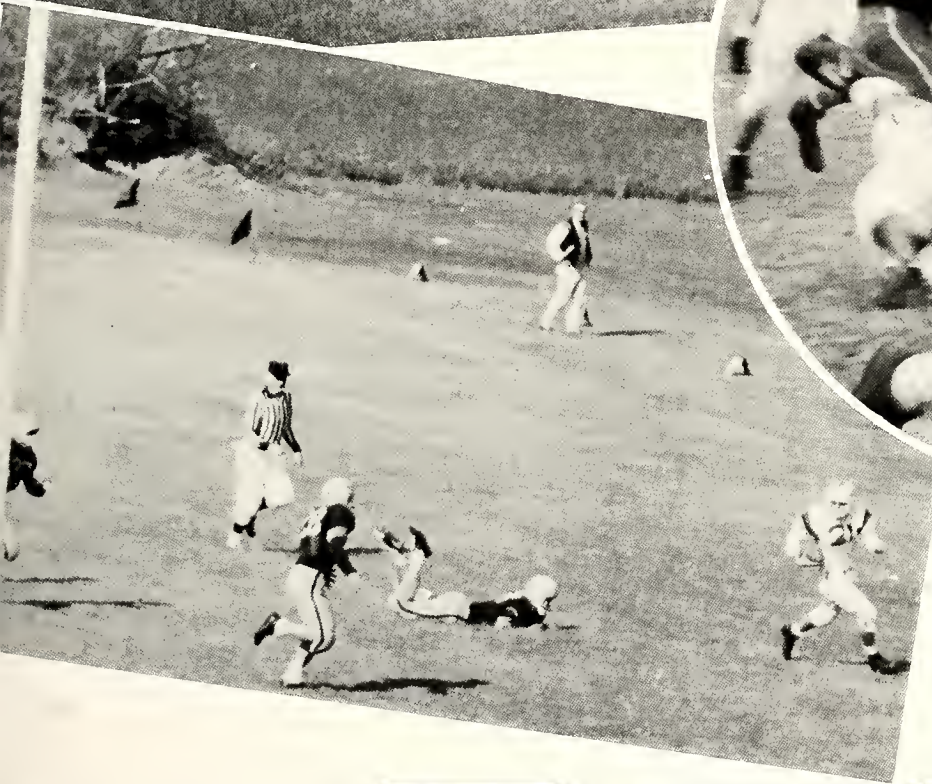

The Cardinal's defensive wall smothers another play.

Ken Daly breaks through the Milton line for 10 yards.

BASKETBALL

The team record? 10 wins, 10 losses. This doesn't seem impressive until you consider the number of freshmen on the squad, the semester drops, and the injuries. But those freshmen came through with all they had and then some, men like MVP Terry Hooten and Bob Chorvat combining with veterans Jim Hanley, Jack Krueger, Jack Duray, Dan Jurewicz, to defeat Aurora in their second meeting, and to play a great game against the nationally ranked University of Chicago.

Another sport joined the ranks this year. The hockey team, sponsored by the Skating Club, and outfitted with $250 worth of equipment, played Mundelein, Quigley, Maryknoll, and our own seminary on the campus slough and on area indoor rinks. If this year can be considered any indication, hockey will become one of the most popular spectator and participation sports on campus.

As the Procopian News said, NO POSIES FOR ROSIE'S THIS YEAR. The "Bombers," who had defeated the champions earlier in the year, fought long and hard in the final game, but not enough. "Rosie's Boys" is a senior team, and in the three years that this team played, they held the championship each year, gave up on a total of six touchdowns while averaging some six scores per game themselves, and lost only one. Next year should prove interesting.
